From the website: the MASSIVE PASSIVE EQ plugin is designed to be a free .Phenols with thermoset properties are useful for a wide variety of coating applications. In particular, phenolic novolac resins having incorporated therein a suitable curing agent provide a variety of useful coating compositions. Such compositions are described in detail in Handbook of Organic Coatings, T. L.

Peiffer, editor, McGraw-Hill Book Co., New York, 1978, pp. 253-263. It has been found that coatings of cured phenolic novolac resins having good resistance to weathering and good resistance to scratching can be produced by use of a coating composition consisting essentially of a phenolic novolac resin and an effective amount of an acid phosphate curing agent. Furthermore, such coatings can be applied with a commercially feasible level of VOC (volatile organic content), as measured by ASTM D-2863, well below that of currently available epoxy and alkyd materials. U.S. Pat. No. 4,325,854 to Tessler et al. describes the application of thermoset coatings to automotive exterior body panels using a coating system consisting essentially of a covalently bound thermosetting resin, a polyol binder resin, and a fatty acid phosphate ester. U.S. Pat. No. 4,319,080 to Tessler et al. describes a coating composition consisting essentially of (a) a liquid phenolic resin, (b) a phenolic-based binder resin, and (c) a phosphorous acid phosphate ester. U.S. Pat. No. 4,168,973 to Tessler et al. describes a coating composition consisting essentially of (a) a liquid phenolic resin, (b) a phenolic-based binder resin,
